WAYLAND DAHLIA GARDENS

WAYLAND, MICHIGAN

SEASON OF 1943

This edition of DIG & DUNG is intended primarily for Retail Seed and Nursery stores, Florists and Department stores, and those who want a fast selling popular priced line of Dahlias for over-the-counter trade. Those who sell through catalogs, as well as those who buy dahlias in bulk for growing either roots or cut flowers, should send for our General Trade Edition, in which are listed nearly all the standard garden, cut flower and exhibition varieties available in quantities sufficient for the wholesale trade.

In making up the line of Boxed Dahlia Collections presented in this Bulletin we have tried to give our dealers not only a line of merchandise that would enable them to compete with the Dime stores, but also a line that could be offered with full assurance that the stock is absolutely of the highest grade and sure to please even that exacting type of customer "who has gone through life demanding to see the manager."

To build up a stock sufficient to make this line possible has taken a lot of time and money, and now that we are ready to release nine different collections to our dealers, we feel that we can go to them and tell them frankly that it is our belief that never before have they had the opportunity to take on a line of goods that could compare with it for selling powers.

Those of you who have happened into the Dime stores in the spring have no doubt seen dahlias going out as fast as they could be handed over the counter — roots perhaps of doubtful origin, packed in gaudily colored cartons, selling like hotcakes at a dime a throw.

Now we are offering you dahlias packed six good roots of known origin, known quality and known value in an attractive box to sell at 50c a box — only 8⅓c a root or 1⅓c less than the Dime store price.

Each box states plainly the names of the varieties contained and type and color of each variety so customers can make selections easily and without any great sales effort on your part.

We want you to try this line this year and be convinced that it will outsell any packaged article in your store.

Remember we stand back of every root we put out and guarantee all stock in these boxes to be SURE TO GROW, FREE FROM DISEASE AND TRUE TO NAME—

This year, with the shortage of merchandise which prevails in nearly all lines, our Boxed Dahlia Collections should be of especial interest to the wide awake seed merchant. Here is a line of goods strictly in keeping with your regular line, packed already for instant acceptance by your customer and selling at a price, even if you retail at 69c as many of our dealers are doing, which is really a bargain under present conditions.

Each collection presents a perfectly balanced range of colors and you can sell your customer either a single box or the whole line and assure him that each collection presents a list of varieties entirely different from the other collections.

DON'T DELAY!

This bulletin is being mailed to nearly all the retail seed dealers in the United States. We are prepared to take on only one thousand more of these dealers this spring and to avoid disappointment we suggest that you get your order in without delay. Remember dahlias are a specialty crop and when present stock is exhausted more roots will not be available until another season's crop is harvested.

If you plan to list these Dahlias in your annual catalog we will gladly loan to you the above electro for illustration purposes.

W BLUE LABEL DAHLIAS ARE

GROWN RIGHT

All our stock is grown by ourselves on our own fertile farms, and is stored, processed and packed in our own frost-proof cellars.

Planting, cultivating and digging are all done on a large scale with the latest modern machinery and at minimum cost.

Fields are all carefully rogued during blooming season and all plants showing any sign of weakness as well as those not true to name are destroyed.

You can't find better stock at any price, and every root can be depended upon to produce a strong healthy plant that will bloom from late summer until frost the year it is planted.

PACKED RIGHT

Each root is packed in clean green log sawdust, wrapped in white semi-parchment paper, and labelled with our special blue label showing name of variety, type and predominating color.

The six roots in each collection are wrapped in green florist's tissue with Cultural Directions, and packed in a neat box with colored label showing contents.

These boxes make an attractive piece of merchandise and the roots contained in them will keep for weeks without shriveling or losing their vitality.

PRICED RIGHT

We have tried to make the price on these collections so low that every one of your customers would want to buy them.

Every person who grows dahlias at all will surely want a full range of colors in order that each cutting of blooms will make an attractive bouquet. Most customers will want more than one collection, and no doubt many of them will want the whole set, especially when they can be had for such a small cost.

We urge our dealers to have at least a fair representation of each collection in stock and to make it possible for them to do so, we have made a very interesting SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER which will be found on page 6.

In any case where such alterations are made we will give equal or better value in same type and color, and in every case labels will be made to state exact contents of the box. We look for a large demand for all of these collections, and believe we have set aside sufficient stock of each variety to carry us through the season, so our customers may be assured that no changes will be made unless absolutely necessary.
